MESSAGE FROM THE ANZIBA PRESIDENT AND THE AIB(OCEANIA) CHAPTER CHAIR

On behalf of the Australia and New Zealand International Business Academy (ANZIBA) and the Academy of International Business Oceania Chapter (AIB-Oceania), we are pleased to welcome you all to the 1st collaborative event between our two vibrant communities in the beautiful islands of Fiji. We are especially proud that this event reflects the spirit of partnership between our two organisations. We see it as a significant milestone in our shared journey to foster deeper regional engagement, scholarly exchange, and meaningful collaboration across the international business landscape. ANZIBA and AIB-Oceania each have rich legacies in advancing International Business scholarship in our region. Both entities have cultivated a collegial and developmental environment through their respective annual meetings, mentoring programmes, and other initiatives. They have brought together International Business scholars from across Oceania and beyond to their annual events, enriching our field's intellectual fabric and diversity, strengthening existing networks, and establishing new relationships.

While this inaugural event is initiated and organised in the spirit of collaboration, it also features elements that are distinctive to each of our two entities. ANZIBA leads the Doctoral Colloquium, the Early-Career Scholars Day, and the Mid-Career Scholars Day. AIB-Oceania takes the lead on the methods and paper development workshops. We intend to maintain this distinctiveness in the future as well.

We are deeply grateful to our local hosts – Fiji National University (FNU) and The University of the South Pacific (USP) – for their warm hospitality, wealth of local knowledge, and generous support. Opening their doors to our scholarly community has helped create a space where ideas can flourish, knowledge can be exchanged in a critical yet positive environment, and connections can thrive. With its rich cultural heritage and strategic location in the Pacific, Fiji offers a fitting backdrop for our discussions on global and regional business and sustainable development. It reminds us of the importance of inclusivity, diversity, and local relevance in our International Business research and teaching.

We are also indebted to two members of our organising team – Dr Dana L. Ott (ANZIBA Vice-President Marketing and Communications) and Dr Swati Nagar (Vice President and Secretary). They have worked incredibly hard over several months to bring the event to fruition. Our team has tried its best to ensure everyone can enjoy and benefit from the event in several ways. We would not have been able to achieve this without the support we received from our local hosts. We would like to acknowledge, in particular, the help and advice offered by Prof Anand Chand (Associate Dean Research and Innovation, FNU) and Prof Gurmeet Singh (Deputy Vice Chancellor Research and Innovation, and Head of School, SBM, USP) and their respective teams.

We hope this event will mark the beginning of our future annual joint gatherings and other initiatives that bring us together, challenge and inspire us, and move our field forward. Thank you for being part of it. We look forward to the ideas to be shared, the connections to be forged, and the impact we will create together.
Vinaka vakalevu, and welcome once again!

Message from the Host Institutions
Fiji National University and The University of the South Pacific

Bula vinaka and warm Pacific greetings to you all.

On behalf of the Fiji National University (FNU) and the College of Hospitality and Tourism Studies (CBHTS), it is my great pleasure to welcome you to this International Business event, jointly hosted by Australia and New Zealand International Business Academy (ANZIBA) and the AIB-Oceania Chapter.

Together with our esteemed colleagues from the University of South Pacific (USP), we are honoured to co-host this landmark event in the heart of Fiji. The theme – "Global Tides, Local Ties, Solesolevaki: Shaping the Future of International Business Research and Pedagogy" – is both powerful and resonant. It aligns profoundly with the ethos of FNU, reflecting our commitment to collaborative growth, cultural relevance and transformative scholarship. It reflects out unwavering commitment to engaging with the wider world.

It serves as a reminder of the strengths found in regional knowledge, cultural wisdom, and the partnerships that drive sustainable development across the Pacific. The cherished Fijian value of Solesolevaki embodies the collective effort, community and shared responsibility – principles that underpin our approach to education, research and development. FNU is dedicated to providing accessible, high-quality education across diverse disciplines. With campuses spread throughout Fiji, we play a vital role in shaping future leaders and fostering sustainable development within our region.

As we welcome International Business scholars from across Oceania and beyond, we look forward to fruitful exchanges of ideas, rigorous inquiry and forging of new connections in a positive and friendly environment. We invite you to immerse yourselves fully in the sessions, workshops and conversations that lie ahead. As a relatively young university, we are deeply grateful for the capacity-building initiatives and conference sessions in which our staff have been welcomed. These engagements embody the true spirit of Solesolevak – a testament to collaboration, shared learning and mutual growth. We view this as a meaningful step toward a lasting and impactful partnership.

Vinaka vakalevu and welcome to Fiji National University!

Prof Anand Chand
Associate Dean Research and Innovation
Fiji National University

On behalf of School of Business and Management, The University of the South Pacific, it is my distinct honor and privilege to welcome you all to the collaborative event hosted by the Australia and New Zealand International Business Academy (ANZIBA) and the Academy of International Business (AIB) – Oceania Chapter.

This year, we gather in the beautiful and vibrant setting of Fiji, at the Fiji National University and The University of the South Pacific, to explore the theme: "Global Tides, Local Ties, Solesolevaki: Shaping the Future of International Business Research and Pedagogy."

This theme resonates deeply with the values we hold dear at School of Business and Management. The concept of Global Tides reminds us of the interconnectedness of our world and the importance of collaboration in advancing International Business research and education.

Local Ties highlights the power of regional partnerships and shared knowledge in driving sustainable progress.
And the Fijian concept of Solesolevaki beautifully encapsulates the spirit of community-driven collaboration, mutual support, and resource-sharing – principles that are essential for shaping the future of our field.

As co-hosts of this event, we are thrilled to provide a platform for scholars, researchers, and practitioners to engage in meaningful discussions, share innovative ideas, and foster partnerships that will contribute to the growth and development of International Business.

The diverse tracks, workshops, and sessions planned during this conference promise to inspire and challenge us all, as we collectively work towards advancing our understanding and practice of International Business.
Finally, I encourage all participants to take full advantage of this unique opportunity to connect, collaborate, and learn from one another.

Let us embrace the spirit of Solesolevaki as we work together to shape the future of International Business research and pedagogy.

Prof Gurmeet Singh
Deputy Vice Chancellor Research and Innovation (Acting) and Head of School, SBM.

RESEARCH METHODS WORKSHOPS*

In collaboration with the AIB Research Methods Shared Interest Group
* Open to pre-registered participants only
Fiji National University, Namaka Campus

Workshop Organisers: Dr Anna Earl (University of Canterbury, New Zealand) and Dr Jo Wright (Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand).

8:00 am – 9:15 am - AIB Insights Workshop - Underrepresented Voices in International Business: Insights from Island Economies

Facilitators: Prof William Newburry (Florida International University, USA) and SI guest Editors Prof Snejina Michailova (University of Auckland, New Zealand) and Prof Hussain Rammal (The University of Adelaide, Australia)
Writing for AIB Insights requires a different approach, relative to journals such as the Journal of International Business Studies or the Journal of International Business Policy. This workshop will provide an overview of expectations for publishing in AIB Insights, with an emphasis on best practices when writing for the journal, particularly for the upcoming AIB Insights Special Issue "Underrepresented Voices in International Business: Insights from Island Economies". Participants will also have the opportunity to receive initial feedback on their journal submission ideas.

9:15 am – 10:30 am - Case Studies – A Research Strategy to Reconcile Theory and Context

Facilitator: Prof Rebecca Piekarri (Aalto University School of Business, Finland)
One of the main strengths of the qualitative case study is its ability to address 'how' and 'why' questions. However, it is not possible to answer these questions adequately and explain social phenomena without taking context seriously. In this workshop, I will argue that the case study is a superior research strategy for reconciling theory and context. This can be achieved through contextual theorizing. This style of theorizing aims at building distinctive theories of complex phenomena by turning away from the pursuit of general, universal theories. In case studies, the research context is essential - not a hindrance - to theorizing; it is seen to have explanatory power. Case researchers treat context holistically, rather than extracting out variables and relationships of interest. For them, context is not just description or something external to the study; rather, it is constitutive of the phenomena under study. Case studies are also close to the practitioners' world and therefore their use reduces the risk of producing theories that are obsolete or irrelevant for explaining the social world - a world that is marked by dynamism, causal complexity as well as the situatedness of social action in time and space. Thus, in this workshop, I intend to cover the following topics: 1) define what contextual theorizing is, 2) explain why context matters for theorizing, and 3) illustrate how your research projects could benefit from case studies as a research strategy. This workshop will prepare you to better defend your own methodological choices and improve your research practice.

10:30 am – 10:45 am Short Break with Morning Tea

TUESDAY 11 NOVEMBER 2025

RESEARCH METHODS WORKSHOPS

10:45 am – 12:00 pm - Developing Local Research for Publication in Peer Reviewed Journals

Facilitator: Prof Jonathan Doh (Villanova University, USA)
This workshop will focus on opportunities and challenges associated with conducting research in particular locals that may be viewed as idiosyncratic and difficult to generalize from. Tools and techniques will be discussed for applying generalized theories to specific settings and demonstrating exceptions, deviations, and extensions of those theories. We will also discuss opportunities for leveraging local data and collaborating with scholars from outside the region to achieve complementary contributions that have the potential for publication in international peer reviewed journals. Finally, we will explore opportunities for publishing pedagogical and teaching/ learning research.

Lunch 12:00 – 12:45 pm

12:45 pm – 2:00 pm - The Publication Process: Dos and Don'ts

Facilitator: Prof Alvaro Cuervo-Cazurra (Northeastern University, USA)
This workshop examines how researchers can use emerging market firms as natural laboratories to conduct and publish impactful academic research. Attendees will learn how to identify research opportunities within the unique business environments of developing economies, where firms often face distinct challenges like regulatory uncertainty, resource constraints, and rapid market changes that create ideal conditions for studying business phenomena. The session covers practical approaches for understanding the economic, technological, political and institutional contexts that shape operations in emerging markets, and designing studies that take advantage of these conditions to challenge and extend theoretical models.

2:00 pm	Depart for Suva from FNU	Drop off at Grand Pacific Hotel

WEDNESDAY 12 NOVEMBER 2025

Registration from 8:30 am

Opening and Keynote Address – 9:00 am – 11:00 am
Room – FBE PG Lecture

Keynote Address:

Keynote Speaker: Prof Gary Knight, Willamette University, USA.

Entrepreneurship, Innovation and Technology: Impactful Research in International Business.

Entrepreneurship, innovation, and technology are key factors that enhance the scope and impact of contemporary international business (IB) research. Entrepreneurship introduces dynamic elements such as SME internationalization and superior performance, prompting new theoretical and empirical investigations. Innovation fosters the development of novel business models and relevant cross-national knowledge, expanding the analytical lens of IB studies. Novel, emergent technologies facilitate access to critical data and markets, digital collaboration, and exploration of new opportunities in international business. These elements give rise to IB research that is impactful and more practically relevant, in the internationalization and international of SMEs and other contemporary internationalizing firms.

About the speaker: Gary Knight is Professor and the Helen Jackson Chair at Willamette University in Salem and Portland, Oregon, USA. He has been an invited speaker at institutions worldwide. Gary has co-authored six books, including a textbook on international business and a book on international marketing research. He has authored or co-authored some 60 refereed articles in academic journals, including the Journal of International Business Studies, International Business Review, Journal of International Marketing, and Journal of World Business. Along with S. Tamer Cavusgil, he won the Decade Award at JIBS for their article on born global firms. He is consistently ranked among the top-cited scholars in international marketing and international business. At Google Scholar (scholar.google.com), he has approximately 36,000 total citations, and is ranked No. 13 in 'international business' (among living scholars). A Fellow of the Academy of International Business (AIB), he is currently serving as President (Outgoing) of the AIB. Prior to academia, he was an international executive for several years. He obtained his PhD at Michigan State University, in International Business and marketing.

THURSDAY 13 NOVEMBER 2025

Session 2.1.1 Room S111 Thursday 13 November 9:00 am – 10:30 am

Panel 1: Understanding the Nexus of Climate Change, Women, and International Business in the Pacific

This panel discussion will explore the unique challenges and emerging opportunities at the intersection of climate change, gender equality, and international business in the Pacific region. As one of the most vulnerable areas to climate impacts, the Pacific faces significant threats to its ecosystems, economies, and communities, with women often bearing the brunt of these environmental shifts. The discussion will highlight the vital role of women in climate adaptation and resilience strategies, as well as their untapped potential as key drivers of sustainable business and economic growth. Panelists will delve into the opportunities for integrating gender-responsive policies into climate and business strategies, exploring how international businesses can contribute to both economic development and environmental sustainability.

Panellists:
Dr Maureen Fatiaki Karan (The University of the South Pacific, Laucala Campus)
Ilisapeci Matatolu (The University of the South Pacific, Laucala Campus)
Dr Buriata Eti Tofinga (The University of the South Pacific, Laucala Campus) (Chair)

Session 2.1.2 Room S112 Thursday 13 November 9:00 am – 10:30 am

Panel 2: Decolonising Pedagogy in the Age of AI: Reimagining International Business Education in Oceania

This panel explores the intersection of Artificial Intelligence, Decolonising pedagogy, and International Business education in Oceania, a region deeply shaped by Indigenous knowledges, colonial legacies, and diverse cultural contexts. It invites educators to critically reimagine curriculum design, teaching practices, and ethical responsibilities by centering inclusive, place-conscious, and culturally accountable approaches. The discussion emphasises how responsible AI integration can support, rather than erase, local knowledge systems, values, and perspectives in international business education. Through shared experiences and key provocations, the session seeks to foster dialogue on how educators, institutions, and technologies can collectively enable systemic transformation toward more equitable, sustainable, and contextually grounded business education.

Panellists:
Prof Ella Henry (Auckland University of Technology)
Dr Maulupeivao Betty Ofe-Grant (Auckland University of Technology)
Sione Taufa (University of Auckland)
Dr Swati Nagar (The University of Sydney) (Chair)
